will hardly be credited after reading the report of the Michigan Southern road, which says:

For the most of the winter the price for eastward bound freight has been only about one-half the rate per ton it was last season, which will account for the deficiency in the income of December, January and February.

The earnings of the Company in December, January and February were as follows:

1865-6.	1865-6.
January 1, 1866.	December 1, 1865.
February 1, 1866.	January 1, 1866.
Total.	Total.
$1,149,181	$76,840
Net income.	Net income.

Not earnings for three months $165,030, on $100,000 of capital, without deducting taxes on gross receipts, a decrease as compared with last year of $30,000. The gross traffic fell off $350,000. The net income is off $30,000.

The Evening Post estimates the earnings of the North-Western Road as follows:

For the year.	Expenditure.
718,537	374,156

The interest on the bonds is $10,171.

Remaining for stock.

If this is the condition of the road it should not require a Wall-st. "movement" to put the preferred stock above 100.

The Evening Post says:

We are informed that the debts on the eastern division of the Le Croix River, held prior to the claim for payment, have been paid in full, and the debts on the western division are still outstanding. Other debts are also paid in full, except those on the eastern division of the Le Croix River, held prior to the claim for payment, which are still outstanding.

The Evening Post says:

The demand for money on Saturday was quite moderate, and the market is dull, and prices are without material change.

Interest on bank paper than was offered.

Rates of interest between banks and their depositors ranged from $10 to 10 per cent, and on good paper, in the open market, 9 to 10.

The exchange market continued to fall, and rates were firm at 50 to 55 per cent, and on good paper, 50 to 55 per cent.

There was no currency or coin-subsidy shipped on Saturday.
